CERTIFICATION

Since 1985 iaedp™ has served the professional community, providing education and promoting quality care through certification.

Who?

Health professionals who independently practice in the field of eating disorders.

What?

iaedp offers the Certified Eating Disorders Specialist (CEDS) credential to physicians, dietitians, psychotherapists and other allied health professionals. iaedp™ is a member of the Institute for Credentialing Excellence (ICE) to ensure best practices. International certifications are available for qualifying clinicians who practice outside of the U.S.

Why?

An iaedp CEDS certification verifies that you have advanced knowledge and training in the treatment of eating disorders and provides:

- Quality care for individuals experiencing eating disorders
- Professional identity and commitment to best practices
- Professional excellence and personal satisfaction
- Recognition as a qualified professional in the treatment of eating disorders
- Listing in our international directory of eating disorders professionals
- Opportunity to share your knowledge by becoming an iaedp-approved consultant
